1. In Tumen (N 42-56, E 130-50), in late September 1952, a blackout was being enforced by the police every night at 11:00 p.m. All street lights were put out; while house lights could be left on, windows had to be covered with blackout curtains.
2. In late September most of the Korean war refugees who had been in Tumen had returned to North Korea. Those who had not returned to Korea had moved to the larger Manchurian cities in the interior.
